Jobs

As we mature and grow into adulthood, we all too soon discover that life outside of the halls of Phoebus is a busy one. Many of the Phoebus Phantoms filled their out-of-school hours with part-time jobs, so that they had that extra amount of money which was needed to put gas in the car, repair the car, or make sure that that special someone was taken care of.

A great majority of our students were employed by the Farm Fresh store located in Phoebus. Others worked for various fast-food enterprises or restaurants. Whatever the job, each student quickly learned the awesome responsibilities which accompanied his/her new found duties.

Growing up in today's world is not always an easy task; however, with the help of local businesses, various members of the Phantom student body, soon discovered that adults are people too. Society and the development of a community is a cause that we all have a personal stake in, and these Phantoms were working hard to fill their special roles in life in the city of Hampton.

Mobile

One of the greatest experiences in any high school student's life is that of owning a car. When that tender age of 16 comes around the corner many teenagers don't think of much else, other than driving around with their friends or merely by themselves without an adult by their sides.

A sense of freedom prevails when teenagers don't have to ask their parents to take them everywhere they go, or as Senior class president, Walter Brower, stated, "Whenever I need to go somewhere, I just go, without my parents taking me everywhere." My only complaint would be having to give a ride to all the people who don't have cars and are not giving gas money!"

Although there is freedom in owning a car, there are expenses and hassles. The individuals who own their own cars usually end up chauffeuring half their neighborhood, not to mention their family and/or close friends.

Nevertheless, a car, whether old or new, is the pride and joy of a teenager's life. The hassles may sometimes be more abundant than the joys; however, there is nothing more enjoyable than owning a car.

Top Right: Juniors are rarely known to own such an extravagant car, but there are exceptions to every rule. Right: Dan Harper and friends Bob Gardner and Brian Sheffler, socialize at his Camaro.

Brian Sheffler is the owner of this maroon '66 Mustang.

Rah-Rah-Rah

Pep rallies are an important part of promoting school spirit. This year, the cheerleaders and band performed numbers during each rally. During the specific season, each team was introduced. A tug-of-war or spirit stick competition between classes followed; seniors taking the win every time.

Although some students skipped the pep rallies and left school, the dedicated Phantoms who loved Phoebus really made the difference. Now that the year is finished, we can look back and know that these were the times that added life and excitement to life at Phoebus — Mission Accomplished!

Right: After being introduced, the girls basketball team grabs a cheer before leaving the floor. Bottom: The varsity cheerleader squad performs their routine.

Left: Often the yell leaders flip jump and turn over, but they also work with partners during routines. Below: Raymond Mabolot and other drummers play cadences to fire up the crowd.

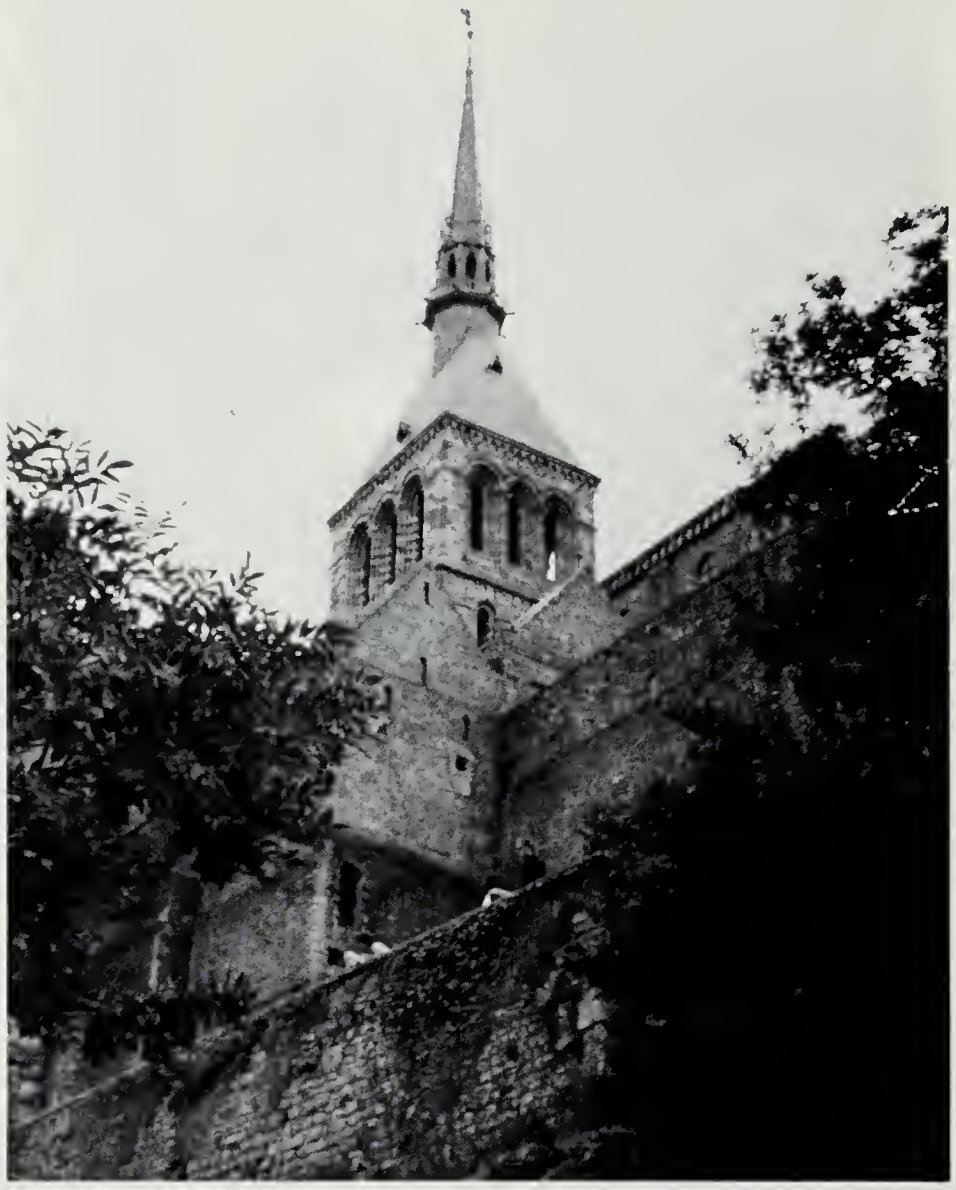
Phantom Travels



Pictures of Le Mont St. Michel and the detailed work on its steeple were mirrors of the many delightful places to visit.

to Europe

French Beauty

Traveling through the landscape and towns of a foreign country is something that most of us rarely have the opportunity to do. Philip Bohi was fortunate enough to tour sections of Europe, and then he was more than willing to share this experience.

Taking in the sights of foreign lands is an exhilarating experience; it is also a learning experience. The lives and souls of non-Americans differ greatly. We are used to our society; yet observing other societies enables us to better judge our own.

Though traveling is a true adventure, it is always a good feeling to see the homeland, America. We grow and develop and that in itself is a long-term mission. In this case, Mission Accomplished!

Seniors in Mr. Sherrard's Physics classes adventure into the world of white water rafting.

Water Follies

Friday, October 3, 1986, was just another school day for most of the students at Phoebus High School. However, for some thirty others it proved to be much more interesting than that.

Mr. Sherrard, the Physics and Calculus teacher and his students in those classes were absent from school that day. They were canoeing on the James River. Most of the participants were anxious about the idea of canoeing through small areas of water rapids. As it turned out, handling the rapids was much less difficult than they had expected; but learning the basic skills of staying afloat was not.

During the first thirty minutes, about four canoes over-turned. What started out as a little fun to liven up a nine mile trip, soon led to the drenching of everyone. At one point, everyone was out of their canoes participating in the splashing and dunking.

Everyone enjoyed the day and returned home with experiences to tell about. Some had involuntarily donated their lunches to the fish. Others had learned not to pick up strange worms on the river's edge, and almost everyone had encountered a strange man with an inflated inner tube in the middle of the water, who was mistaken for a cow.

The canoe trip was a positive experience. They were able to get some exercise, gain new knowledge, and develop skills of team work. In short, they had fun!

A First Class Float

Does the Senior class have ESP? It seems that well may be the case. The football team presented exactly what the seniors predicted, Raider Remains, at the homecoming game against Warwick. "Raider Remains" was the well-chosen theme for this year's Senior class float, but the truth is that working on the float left a few dedicated Phantoms only remnants of time to do all of the other activities they pursue.

Small groups of seniors met at the home of Senior, Cheryl Fahrenkrug, two to three afternoons a week for about three hours a day, in order to accomplish their product. Although this seemed to be a great deal of time, the flower fluffing, gluing, cutting letters and bending chicken wire kept the workers constantly busy. Time passed quickly.

After a final meeting Saturday morning, homecoming weekend, they presented their float to the judges who agreed that this float was a first class production and deserved the first place award. The seniors were more than proud knowing that the float effort was truly a mission accomplished.

Phantom Spirit

The pride and spirit of Phoebus Phantoms reached a new peak this year, as the football team posted its first winning season in its history. The Blue and Gold has won proudly and often. Congratulations were heard echoing in the halls. Yes, the enthusiasm was catching. Not only were the Seniors seen and heard in a rallying spirit, but also the newest freshman was a part of the roar of the crowd during the game. Once the Phoebus spirit has grabbed hold of your soul, you can never release it.

Special Award

This year, Phoebus High School was very proud to have a National Achievement Scholarship semi-finalist. Margot Lee, a senior at Phoebus High School, was named a 1986-87 National Achievement Scholar based on her outstanding performance on the Preliminary Scholastic Aptitude Test. If selected, she would receive scholarship money to help pay for college tuition.

Margot is an honor roll student and participated in many activities including girls' tennis, Model United Nations Society, and National Honor Society, of which she was president.

Margot Lee accepts her award.

For the 1986-87 Phoebus Varsity Cheerleaders and yell-leaders, the fun and excitement began near the end of March during the tryouts. Shortly after tryouts, they began practicing for cheering camp, which was held at Old Dominion University during the month of July. Repetitive practices were not in vain; the team captured first place, which qualified them for the Nationals.

The summer hours were spent with more practice sessions. Naturally, summer practices gave way to daily practices during the school year. Cheerleading is an eleven month sport. Not only do these students perform for the athletic events, but also numerous parades and various competitions.

The Varsity Cheerleading squad and the Junior Varsity squad are more than enthusiastic in their representation of the school. They wear the blue and gold with great pride.

Stars and Stripes Forever

The MCJROTC Color Guard consists of four primary members along with others who act as rotating alternates. To become a member of the Color Guard, one must first be a member of the Drill Team. Those Drill Team members who display a good ability to "glide", a type of march from the waist down with little movement, are then asked to become members of the Color Guard. The present Color Guard members are Sam Walker, Mike Purnell, Tyrone Little, and Reggie Fletcher. The Color Guard participates in drill meets, parades, the openings of football and basketball games, and in special ceremonies. Although competition at drill meets is often tough, the Color Guard has proven to be one of the best.

The Phoebus High School ColorGuard precede the marching band in thier march for school spirit before the Homecoming game.

Ghosts 'n Goblins??

You could certainly tell that it was Halloween at Phoebus. The dark and decorated bookstore, with strange noises coming from within, was run by three DECA members, Jim Hilliard, Sheri Smith, and Tanya Stubbs, who were also dressed in full costume.

Students from the Child Care class took their children, dressed in their best goblin suits, around to designated classes for the traditional goodies. The spirit of Halloween was encompassed in the Phantom halls.

These youngsters took great delight in trick-o-treating through the halls of Phoebus.

Open Arms

Phoebus extended its arms to several exchange students this year. All decided that school work at Phoebus was a lot easier than in their respective countries, and that Americans were more friendly than the people in their native lands.

Eva Caballera, a fifteen year old from Spain, wanted to come to America because it would be "interesting, and I thought that it would be a grand experience." She also come to the conclusion that in Spain they have longer schedules and that "juniors are studying now what we have already studied."

Besides his interst in the United States, "a good educational experience" is what Lars Strandqvist, a seventeen year old Swedish boy had in mind when he decided on his trip. He also agreed that his English would be better afterwards.

Norway was also represented this year at Phoebus, by seventeen year old Kristi Simonsen. She enjoyed meeting new people and wanted to learn how teenagers in America lived. Kristi, like the others, agreed that school was easier in America, but it was easier to skip school or just a class in Norway. She also commented that in her experience she had learned that "countries are not better or worse than another, only different."

Although other exchange students visited Phoebus this year, these three stayed longer and were more involved with activities. The foreign language club especially enjoyed their participation in events. We at Phoebus welcome all foreign students and thank them for helping us widen horizons—Mission Accomplished!

The Chosen Few

The "Citizen of the Month" is a great honor bestowed on only one student representative of each grade level each month. The students are nominated by teachers and are then rated on a scale of 1-10. Academics are just a part of the rating proceedings. Students must be respectful of those around them; they usually contribute a great deal to school life, and often they display leadership qualities. Co-chairpersons of the committee are Mr. Navickas and Mrs. Amante.

Near the end of each month, a banquet is held at the Chamberlin Hotel on Fort Monroe to honor the selected students. During the banquet students introduced themselves to the group, which consists of student representatives from all of the city schools.

At the end of the year, Phoebus High School representatives were honored again. A special meeting was held which included the students' parents. Each selected student received a plaque for his/her accomplishment.

Yell-Leaders Perform

The Phoebus Varsity Yell-Leaders is a group of strong, talented and dedicated young men who take pride in what they do. The squad consists of eight young men who take pride in what they do. The squad consists of eight young men: John "Boxx" Jessuph is considered the philosopher of the group; Kevin "Ping" Marks is the teacher; Earl "the Pearl" Goodrich is the intelligent one; Clifford "Boy" McDonald is the zealous one; Darrel "Crazy D" is the daredevil; Michael "Mr. Thang" Slaughter is the devious one; Nelson Frias is known for this willingness to learn; and Kenny Futrell is the "Kick-backed, cool type." To be a yell-leader one must have a great deal of school spirit, will power, the ability to get along with others, and an abundance of time. Cheering encompasses many hours of hard work; however, the end result is well worth it.

This year's squad spent all summer together. They considered themselves to be "one big happy family." They cheer for the school and their pride is evident as they represent the Phoebus Phantoms.

Action shots catch the athletic endeavors of the yell leaders.

Participation

Even the decorating of the school on the Sunday before Homecoming week was fun. Everyone chipped in and worked towards the goal of making their class hall the best. Although other classes didn't agree, the Junior class came out on the top when the judges gave their decision. The Sophomore class eased into second place.

Although most students worked on the halls, some students decorated other parts of the building, like the office and mall areas. Determined students crawled all over the school that day; however, Homecoming has ended now, but the memories will last forever. Mission Accomplished.

Ring Day

Ask a junior what he/she looks forward to most . . . the response is usually the same . . . the ordering and receiving of the class ring. After the rings are ordered, the juniors must wait for the day when their precious finger ornament will arrive. They all gather in the auditorium to try on and admire their rings.

The excitement of Ring Day is in the air. Juniors displaying their hands, friends turning the ring, signing the paper. This is the process that just about every junior goes through. This day is long in coming for many juniors, anxious to get on with their high school activities . . . including future graduation.

Mid-October, Juniors joined together in the theater to hear a speech, or sales pitch by a Herff-Jones representative, who is often referred to as the "ring man." Automatically, this introduction to life as a junior, filled each individual with anticipation and excitement. Parents were swamped with suggestions and the desires of their eleventh grade children. Orders were taken in the mall area during lunches and the waiting period began.

Finally, the day arrived. All the juniors once again met in the theater for the distribution of the rings. Throughout Ring Day, juniors could be seen displaying the pride associated with being a junior, as it set on the appropriate finger. Mission Accomplished!

Faculty

During the last few years, the state of the educational profession has been cast into a new light. People are becoming more aware of life in the public schools; closer scrutiny is being made of the activities and goals of the classroom teacher.

The teacher is the focal point of most discussion. All the aids, books and extra materials are not worth a great deal, if the proper "teachers" are not employed who can assist in the appropriate development of those who are left to their care.

The Phoebus faculty has proven itself to be one of the most caring faculties in the city. Teachers can be discovered spending extra time with students throughout the course of the day. Weekly afternoon study halls were manned by teachers in an effort to help those students who were concerned enough about their education to stay for that extra bit of needed help.

So often the school days tend to become drudgery; however, more than one that friendly smile or pat on the back which was extended by one of our "teachers" helped to brighten our way through that eight-hour period.

Phantom

Health

Keeping the student body of Phoebus healthy was the job of Mrs. Gilbert, the school nurse, and Mr. Moneymaker, the student assistance counselor. Unbelievable, but true, it was not unusual for students to be waiting for the clinic to open its doors long before the first tardy bell of the day. Is there any wonder why the school nurse would want to roll her eyes and throw up her hands in despair? Always willing to give that special touch to those students who were ill and did need her assistance, the nurse made the clinic an efficient workable atmosphere.

Mr. Moneymaker served as counselor for those students who needed an extra hand to get them through the day. Often seen in his cubbyhole, located around the long dark corridor, Mr. Moneymaker was more than eager to support each and every student who brought a problem to him.

With such caring people, it is not difficult to understand why the healthy atmosphere of Phoebus was contagious.

Phantom Resourcefulness

Throughout the school year, one could hear the moans and groans of Phoebus High students as they suffered through yet another research paper. The teachers seemed to be relentless in their on going task to broaden the minds of their charges. No matter what the subject, it was a definite that some time during the school year, each and every Phantom would experience the agony of a major paper.

The library was the haven for the students; for it was here, that males and females, ninth and twelfth graders chanted their complaints to the heavens. The faithful librarians served as guardian angels and managed to escort these students through their trials and tribulations.

Phoebus Beauties

The fourteenth annual Miss Phoebus Pageant was held at the Chamberlin Hotel on Friday, October 10, 1986. The pageant was from 7:00 until 9:00 p.m. and a dance was held afterwards in honor of the new Miss Phoebus.

The pageant consisted of twenty-one contestants ranging in age from 16 to 20. The contestants were judged on personality, poise, and beauty. Each contestant was interviewed by a panel of judges, at a luncheon on October 4, 1986.

Young ladies displaying character and poise walked up onto the stage in both beautiful street-length attire and glamorous evening gowns. The competition was exciting.

After all twenty-one contestants appeared on stage twice, all were called back on to the stage to hear the announcement of the winners. The first award was for Miss Congeniality. The winner of this much coveted award was Stephanie Traynham, a former Phantom. She was also named second runner-up in the competition. First runner-up was Rebecca Alligood, who is also a former Phoebus student.

Then as the remaining nineteen young ladies stood anxiously, hoping to hear their names, seventeen year old Kelley Walker, a Phoebus High Senior, was crowned the new Miss Phoebus.

All of the contestants participated in the parade on Saturday morning. Kelley Walker presented the medals to the winners of the race that morning, and later she awarded trophies to the winning units in the parade. Sunday was another busy day for the new queen; she made an appearance at the fish fry in the Legion Hall in Phoebus.

Enthusiasm

No matter where you looked this year there was one thing that would always catch your eye . . . that was student involvement. Phantoms displayed their school pride each and every day, not only in the manner in which they went through the hour to hour tasks of the classroom, but also in their appearance and attitude.

Phantoms got involved. Whether the task at hand was to follow up on a club or organization related project, push on with a fund raising activity, or decorate a section of the Phoebus halls, the Phantoms were hard at work. They were supportive of numerous community related events.

Faithfully displaying the blue and gold colors wherever they went, Phoebus found itself with perhaps the hardest working classes in its history. Caring was a central theme throughout the year. The caring stemmed from the immense dedication of both the staff and the student body. Student leaders took it upon themselves to lead their charges to victories which did not always exist on the athletic grounds. Yes, we were proud to be Phantoms . . . our Mission Accomplished.

Wedding Bells

The purpose of the mock wedding was to show each and every step which was involved in the creation of a traditional wedding. Some of the responsibilities were estimating the cost of the wedding, deciding on the color scheme, selecting the invitations, and deciding where and when the ceremony should take place. At times the list of responsibilities for the bride and groom seemed overwhelming.

The students of Mrs. Vaughan's first and fifth period classes catered the reception as well as creating the wedding. Basic plans began at the onset of the school year. Two weeks before Christmas break final selections on gowns and tuxedos were made. The hectic last week prior to the ceremony was filled with cooking duties.

Special invitations were sent to the Mayor and Mrs. Eason, Dr. Musselman, Superintendent of Schools, School Board members and media personnel.

This was the first mock wedding experienced by the students of Phoebus. This course was not created to encourage teen marriages, but to show the great amount of work which goes into the preparation for a wedding. Everything was done as a class.

"Prom 86"

The end of the school year brings with it many activities for the Senior Class members. One of the most exciting of these functions is the annual prom. Usually held during the month of May, this dance is the "dressed-up" final gathering of many Phoebus students.

The 1986 Prom was special in more ways than one. This was the last prom which was sponsored by the Senior class. This year the responsibility for a successful prom fell on the shoulders of the Junior class.

Gorgeous prom dresses and stately tuxedoes decorated the Chamberlin Hotel's Virginia Room. Music provided by a band helped to set the festive mood for the seniors and their dates.

Too soon the evening escaped, and the seniors had to return to a somewhat normal life as they prepared for graduation and the march in the Hampton Coliseum. Numerous parties followed the dancing. Jim Sackett invited friends to a pool party, and Chris Hall had his home open to senior friends and their dates who were still awake and ready to have a good time.

Finally the time had come, the King and Queen were announced, Connie Moss and Mack Greene. Mr. Washington crowns the 1986 Prom Queen. David Harris and date enjoy the music.

Mrs. Amante and her husband enjoy the music. Administrators shared the enthusiasm of the students as they watched the night unfold.

Happy Meals

One of the first concerns of each and every student as he or she enters school in the fall, is which lunch period he or she will be blocked into. Checking out that fourth period class brought squeals of delight from some students and grunts of disgust from others.

Not having the opportunity to dine with your closest friends can be an over-powering experience. You know the old saying, "misery loves company."

The mall eating atmosphere was something new for the ninth graders, who in the past had been used to the confines of cafeteria, and close supervision by teachers. Here an entirely new realm of freedom had to be considered. Most Phantoms adjusted to this without much difficulty. Yes, being a member of a high school student body was bound to be enjoyable.

New Phantoms also discovered that the lunches offered much more variety to their lives. Bagged lunches and various warm selections were available every day.

In Pursuit . . .

It seems as if we are always in pursuit of one thing or another. Phantoms were prime examples of this fact. One of their main pursuits was a personal corner in the mall area with a close group of friends so they could recount the tales of the day during their brief encounter with the servings of the day. For some students this seemed to be the highlight of their day, as they bounded for their classes eagerly pushing their way through the long lines to grab the goodies and race to that most precious seat.

Luckily the Seniors did not have as difficult a task. With the creation of the Senior Corner last year, the upper classmen could take their nourishment far from the crowd, relax and enjoy the company of the individuals which they had come to know over a long period of time. The Senior Corner is a privilege and a reward. Seniors are distinguished members of the student body. This special haven once again set them apart from the rest of the world. It served as a home for the weary.

The pursuit for that special place in the mall will continue as the years drift by. Everyone will have a special niche.

Don't Say "Good-bye"

Don't say "good-bye"
Because they only went on vacation
To a place no travel agency
Can send anyone
They went somewhere better than Any place we know
They went on a journey
They took a path ahead of us—
A short cut
We took the longer path
But the paths will meet together
In the end
And then we'll go to them
And say "hello"
So, for now, don't think "good-bye"
Think, "I'll see you some day."

Jill Stark, 1987

In memory of the Phantoms who departed this school term.

For most of us, rolling into the halls of Phoebus on a Monday morning is not always the easiest thing to do. Long before we get here, Mr. Washington has put in a great deal of time making sure that our Monday, and every day thereafter gets off to a good start. An ordinary work week for Mr. Washington does not end on Friday afternoon. Much of his weekend time is spent preparing for the future activities of the Phantoms.

Ninth graders discovered the caring attitude of our principal quickly. Special meetings were held with the new Phantoms to discuss not only the rules and regulations, but also the concerns of these individuals.

All Phantoms regard Mr. Washington as a leader. His high visibility at all Phantom activities both during and after school hours helps to boost the spirit of the Phantoms.

Mr. Bennett finds it necessary to divide his time among numerous responsibilities. Not only, did he handle the scheduling of all athletic events for the school, but also he found the time to handle any discipline problems which cropped up during the course of the year where ninth graders were concerned. Athletes and students turned to Mr. Bennett when their concerns needed to be heard and an answer needed to be provided. His official title, Assistant Principal and Athletic Director, made it more than evident that his days were filled with many duties.

Mrs. Henry

Mrs. Henry was a new addition to the administrative force this year. Not only was she a new face to Phoebus, but also a new administrator in the city of Hampton. She found her duties to be challenging and rewarding. Assistant Principal of Instruction, she was in charge of handling and solving any instructional problems that loomed on the horizon, whether they be student or teacher concerns. The first few weeks were hectic ones, but she was soon a natural part of Phantom life.

Mr. Navickas, Assistant Principal, moved up with last year's ninth graders, and continued to handle any discipline problems which they might experience as tenth graders. Always on top of the situation, he could be found opening jammed lockers, pulling cafeteria duty, ironing out differences between students, and helping those teachers who brought "special" problems to him. Through it all, he continued to smile and ease the load of those around him.

Phantom Fantasies

Wouldn't it have been nice to arrive at work one day, sit down at your desk, smile at those individuals who passed by, occasionally shuffling down the hall to insure that all was well? If there was ever a fantasy, this was sure to be one that the Deans held somewhere in the confines of their wildest imaginations.

The life of a Dean is far from that fantasy world. Unbelievable lines of students were viewed on a daily basis as they stood outside of the respective Dean's office waiting to receive an excused or unexcused note for a previous absence. Attempting to keep up with the tardies was a mind-boggling experience.

Throughout the day, Mrs. Linda Deans, Dean of Women, and Coach Mike Tallon, Dean of Men, could still find the time to take care of that one extra student who needed some "special" understanding. Ninth graders and those students new to Phoebus had to adjust to the roles that were handled by the Deans; this was a new experience for them. They soon discovered that the Deans office was a place one could go to for help when an understanding heart was needed.

Guidance

When all else fails, where does one turn? One advances to the Guidance department. It is there that the trained staff will counsel each student and get him or her on the appropriate path to success.

Located upstairs in the English hall, the guidance offices were always involved in busy traffic patterns. The beginning of the school year, found many Phantoms questioning their schedules. The closing of the school year found departing Phantoms preparing those last minutes items with the assistance of their guidance counselors, so that they could smoothly move to the next stage in their lives.

Eager to serve the student body, the counselors visited classes and posted sign up sheets so that they could guarantee each student the chance to discuss any problems he or she might have during the course of the year.

Office Staff

Determination and dedication are two characteristics that each good secretary should possess. If you add to these the qualities of caring and a loving heart you would have a good description of the three delightful women who man the main office, or hold down the fort. Each secretary had her own personal list of responsibilities, yet it was not unusual to find each one lending a helping hand to the other, or to students and teachers who needed a bit of extra guidance to get through the long day.

With smiles in tact, these ladies took on the tasks of the day, and usually emerged victorious at the end of the eight hours. We thank each one of them for their guidance and courage. They enabled many of us to see the light at the end of the tunnel.

Mrs. Evans always took the time to smile.

Phoebus Football

The Phoebus Phantoms rebounded from a normal, yet disappointing season to reign as co-district champs with Hampton High, the Division I state champions, with a 9-3 record. After losing the first two games, Phoebus went on a nine game winning streak, shocking everyone in the state. Eventually Phoebus went to the post season district tournament, in search of the division II state championship.

The Phantoms were scheduled to play Cradock, a team that they had beaten earlier in a pre-season game, but due to a forfeit by Lafayette, the team previously holding down second place, were thrust into first place as district champs, and had to take on Lake Taylor. The Phantoms had also played Lake Taylor in a pre-season game, losing on a trick punt play.

Like the first meeting of the two teams, the game was low scoring and very close. This time, however, Phoebus prevailed 9-7.

Phoebus's good fortunes ran low when they once again met the Warwick Raiders, a team they had beaten on homecoming 27-22. The much larger and stronger team, statistically, ended the Phantoms elaborate season.

Homecoming 1986

Spirit Week marked the beginning of football homecoming. The week began with Nerd Day, followed by Bum Day, Twin Day, Dress-Up Day, and Blue-and-Gold Day.

Phoebus' spirit almost met its peak that Friday during the pep rally. The seniors took the spirit stick and with a rough battle were able to conquer the juniors in the tug-o'war competition.

Each class spent Saturday afternoon putting the finish touches on their respective homecoming floats. The parade began at City Hall and ended at Darling Stadium. The Sophomores won for the greatest participation, and the seniors won for the best-decorated float.

During half-time, the Homecoming King and Queen were announced and presented to the cheering Phantom crowd. Melford Booker and Kim Holloway were the honorees.

To top off the week, Phoebus triumphed over Warwick with a 27-22 win. They didn't just win the Homecoming game, but also set a new school record of three consecutive wins.

Sink or Swim

This year's swim team had a literal "sink or swim" season characterized by hard work, long practices, and strenuous effort. The practices consisted of distance swimming (about one mile per day) and sprints (20 sets of 25 meters). Also, our swimmers practiced many styles of swimming during the season including the freestyle-crawl, the breastroke, the butterfly, and the backstroke.

Though the Phoebus team did not win a meet this year, their efforts were complimented to their abilities and stamina. The whole team was outstanding individually, but the fact that Phoebus "sunk" in competition was because of numbers. Like in the past, lack of interest and participation was the greatest enemy of the team.

The team, which was made up of Captain Lee English, Cheryl Fahrenkrug, Tracy Devine, Rusty Price, Beth Anne Miller, Karen Schulthis, Greg Koch, Danneen O'Keefe, Larry Howard, Richard Joyner, David English, and Jennifer Albright, became extremely good swimmers due to their dedication. With the guidance of Coach Minklewitz and Assistant Coach Jon Moneymaker, the Phoebus High swim team had a good chance of winning in district competition, but because of a damaged pool it did not come about. Also, the damaged pool forced the swim season to a close and the hard work of our team was unrewarded.

Basketball

The junior varsity basketball team and the Lady Phantoms once again brought a brilliant spotlight to focus on Phoebus High. The junior varsity team boasted a new school record for junior varsity wins; they emerged victorious with 12 wins and 4 losses.

The Lady Phantoms repeated their over-powering ways once again this year. At press time the strong girls team, coached by Mike Tallon was well on its way toward a State Championship. The emotions and pride of each and every Phantom was carried onto the court.

On the Move

This year proved to be an interesting one for the cross country teams. The boys' team showed tremendous improvement from last year and the girls had an excellent season; this being the first year for a girls' team at Phoebus.

We took on Tabb on very short notice in a scrimmage meet at Gosnold's Hop Park, August 28. The meet did our girls no good as the Tabb girls walked the course. Bethel ran well against us, but Jennifer Albright and Tracy Devine ran excellent races for the girls, even though Bethel ran only three girls. We then went to the Norfolk Catholic Invitational Meet where Jenny showed she had the possibility to be one of the strongest runners in the district by placing 19th.

We ran well against a strong Denbigh team at Newport News City Park and lost. We then had a coach's nightmare at York as Barbara Brandt took a wrong turn on the course and kept us waiting two hours as we tried to find her. She took a tour of the Newport News City Park campsite area.

Warwich gave the boys their first win as David and Kirk finished 1, 2. The girls took the first five places.

We should have beaten Hampton the following week, but lost a close decision. Tracy and Rosie missed the bus to the William and Mary Invitational, and we fielded a team of only four girls. Kecoughtan ran well against us, but we handily defeated them.

Kirk Hilliard and Kjersti Simonsen ran excellent races in the City meet. The boys finished sixth in the District Meet and the girls fifth, as Kjersti finished tenth, earning her trip to the Regionals. For having missing about four weeks of the season, because she wanted to play basketball, Kjersti had an excellent season.

The National Association of Jazz Educators sponsored the third annual All-Virginia High School Jazz Ensemble this past November at the Virginia State Music Conference that was held at the Hotel Roanoke.

This group was chosen by audition and Phoebus High School was indeed well represented. Of the eighteen members in the ensemble, nine from Phoebus participated and two others from Phoebus were unable due to their participation at the District football playoff game with Warwick High School which occurred at the same time as the State Music Festival.

Members from Phoebus who participated were Mike Carruthers, John Cahill, and Jody Sanzo, trumpets; David Basford and Marcus Prater, trombones; Floyd Mullins and Philip Bohi, saxophones; Jim Taylor, piano; and Rodney Roberts, drum set. David Pressley and Pat Coleman, drums were the two who were unable to perform due to the football game.

In addition to the students from Phoebus, the director of this year's ensemble was Al Morris, band director at Phoebus.

True Colors

The band and auxiliary units definitely displayed the true Phoebus colors in their dedication and hard work. No matter what instrument or unit the students belonged to, all had practicing and performing to do.

Being a member of the band was not such an easy task. There was always something on the schedule for these students, whether it was fund-raising, practicing, performing or just enjoying the company of friends.

This year's band had more seniors than in any of the past years. They planned to take advantage of this by reaching for a goal of superior at the Band Festival which included all the other bands from this area.

They began the school year with numerous fund-raising activities, and they continued this process throughout the year until they had enough money for their annual band trip in May. The band trip served as a type of reward for the hard work that the band members put out during the course of the year.

Although the students involved in our band program seem to have had a few advantages: getting out of class, special trips . . . these few advantages are well-deserved by the members of our Phoebus band.

Down to the Wire

On October 6, after months of preparation, the Tidewater Challenge team faced last year's champions, Maury. They were led by captain Margot Lee. At the end of the first round of play, Phoebus led their opponents by a score of 120 to 100. Throughout the match, the score was either tied or extremely close. Team members Margot Lee, Michale Mingee, Philip Bohi, and Geoff Avery were quick on the buzzer and gave the returning champions quite a "challenge."

At the end of the sixth and final round of competition, the score was tied at 380 points. The teams then entered a tiebreaker round of three questions resulting in a final score of Phoebus 380 and Maury 400.

This was a remarkable accomplishment by the Phantoms, who had never before made it past the first round of competition. Thanks must go to the coaches, Mr. Neil Cox and Ms. Bonnie Tingle, who spent endless hours preparing the team. The alternates to the Phantom team were Lee English, Michele Hedden, Shane Caldwell, and David Basford.

Hard Work Pays Off

Some days it seems as if the harder we work, the less we accomplish. The members of the Honor Society found that they were the exception to this rule. Being honored as excelling in the academic disciplines, carries with it a pride and great deal of self-esteem. Math Honor Society members and those individuals who found themsleves to be a part of the Model United Nations group worked a great deal for many long hours to gain these distinctions. They say that "all work and no play" can produce a dull personality; however, these Phantoms are proof positive that hard work led to a special distinction. They gained in both spirit and mind.

Holiday Festivities

During the Christmas holidays, all first period classes collected money to give to the Salvation Army. On Friday, before Christmas break, the band and the chorus put together a Christmas program for the school. During the program, a check was presented to the Salvation Army representative from the S.C.A. The total amount raised by the student body was $1,347.61. This project was sponsored by the freshman class.

The week before Christmas, the halls buzzed with Christmas cheer. Red and green, the festive colors of Christmas, were seen throughout the building; it was almost impossible to avoid getting caught up in the spirit of the holidays. Students sporting Santa Claus hats became a common sight. The many "Merry Christmas" greetings received were just enough to help make the last long week of school bearable, if not down right enjoyable.

The crowd roared as the "Hooters" set the stage. This free, two-hour concert was the kick-off for Bay Day '86. Before the concert, the band could be seen back stage passing a football while the crowd mingled out front. The Hooters played such selections as "And we Danced" and "All You Zombies".

Most of the next day was spent buying crafts and playing games, and that night the rides were in full bloom. The last day was a little slow, but things picked up just in time for the firework display. With that, Bay Days '86 came to a close.

Blue Phantom Inn

Much time was spent in the Food Occupations class in preparation for the smooth operation of the Blue Phantom Inn. The work began the first day that the doors of the school opened. The second year class was asked to prepare well-balanced, well-decorated menus for future use in the restaurant. Mrs. Burton selected from the many suggested menus which ones would be used to prepare the meals. Limited cooking time often hampered the preparation of certain meals.

After the selection was made, the individual whose meal was picked was held responsible for main dish preparation, running the cash register and serving as host.

Many teachers discovered that dining in the warm and relaxing atmosphere was a treat from the work day. Waiters and waitresses served selected tables with professionalism.

Prior to the actual serving of the meal, Mrs. Burton distributed a copy of the menu choices, so that interested parties could make their selection.

Beauty

Who would think that cleaning up could be fun? The Beautification Committee does! They've spent countless hours cleaning up our school grounds, as well as the local community. On special "clean-up" days, the Beautification Committee is always present to head up the work. Other clubs are invited to participate on this day and each group takes a certain task until all of the needed improvements are made.

By throwing dances and other fund raisers the Beautification Committee raised enough money to purchase benches, shrubbery, and other needed materials used to decorate our school.

Although the committee is small it has accomplished much in the past few years. The group sold drinks and sponsored a newspaper drive. Long range plans also included preparations to clean up Grandview Beach and to plant sea grass to prevent erosion.

Business

This year the business students hosted the faculty and administration for a learning lunch break. Tables and booths were set up in the ICT/VICA room displaying the various pursuits of the Phantoms after hours.

Participating students arranged their displays to accommodate the information needed to explain their jobs. Not only were the arrangements informative, but some were delicious as well. Those individuals who worked for various restaurants or stores which served food were preparing their specialities while demonstrating.

Students in these classes prepared a mouth-watering spread for all those who stopped by to visit and learn. These Phantoms proved that the concepts they have been reviewing over many years can be applied to the great world outside.

Partaking of the refreshments was a sideline to the activities of the day.

Rosalind Scott and her friends explained the basics of the day care center.

Literary Endeavors

The journalism class, taught by Mrs. Lay, gave students experience in news, feature, and editorial writing. Also editing and layout skills are learned that can be used in other classes.

The newspaper staff, made up of the journalism students and other volunteers reports on school activities, events and other current news topics.

The Phoebus Forum published bi-monthly sells for 25¢ and its goal was to inform Phoebus students of the happenings in the school and in the community.

The school's literary magazine, sponsored by Mrs. Seward was produced with a bit more ease this year. A creative writing class was created, and these students accomplished the majority of the writing. This organization sponsored numerous writing contests throughout the year, to encourage student body participation in the practice of writing.

Beth Sadler and Kelley Walker, Co-editors, review some plans for this year's production.

Spectre Preparation

Layouts, copy, photographs, and deadlines . . . just a few of the aspects involved with yearbooks. This year a class period was granted for the co-editor and sponsor of the yearbook so that planning and preparation would be an on-going process. Every morning with hot chocolate in hand, Kelley Walker and Mrs. Gregory sat in A2A drawing, cutting, pasting, and writing articles so that when June arrived, the yearbooks could be distributed.

Some members of the student body became involved by writing copy. Our photographers, Lee English and Kevin Karjala, were constantly on the run from one event to another, trying to cover as much as the year as possible.

At a seminar this past summer, Beth Sadler and Kelley Walker, after much thought and determination decided on the theme and cover design. They attended sessions dealing with each aspect of the yearbook: layouts, copy, organization, how to actually make our book sell.

Although the yearbook is presented at the end of the year as a well-developed, complete text of that school year's events, an extreme amount of hard work, headache, and frustration is involved. But when asked, "Why do you put up with this? What's in it for you?" We just smile and know the feeling of accomplishment that comes with the finished product—Mission Accomplished!

Activity

The hectic life of a high school student was displayed throughout the school year from the very first day that the Phantoms began to crowd into the halls of Phoebus. When things are hectic, we often do our best. So it was for the majority of the student body.

Busy schedules had to incorporate class time, social time and refreshment time. Too often it seemed as if there were not enough time for the social aspects of student life, and far too much time for the academic aspects.

After school hours were filled with jobs for many of the Phantoms. Homework often placed a distant second for these students. Whatever the case,the Phantoms sped through another school year more than ready to deal with any hectic hours which came their way.

Phoebus High School
ALMA MATER

Phoebus High unto thee, we pledge faith and loyalty. Thy memories always we shall hold. Of shining halls of blue and gold
The gold the light that shows the way. The blue for loyalty.
Let every voice unto the skies
be raised in praise of thee
Our praise for thee will never die. We'll ever hold our banners high.
